RE: HOURS OF CHILDREN'S PROGRAMMING PER DAY

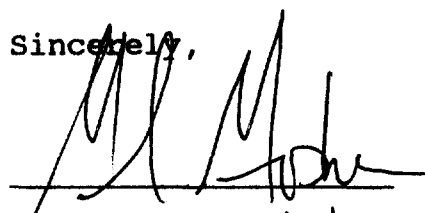

Dear Ms. Kreisman:

We believe the FCC should require each television station to air a minimum of 3-1/2 hours of entertaining and educational children's programming per day between the hours of 5am and 8pm.

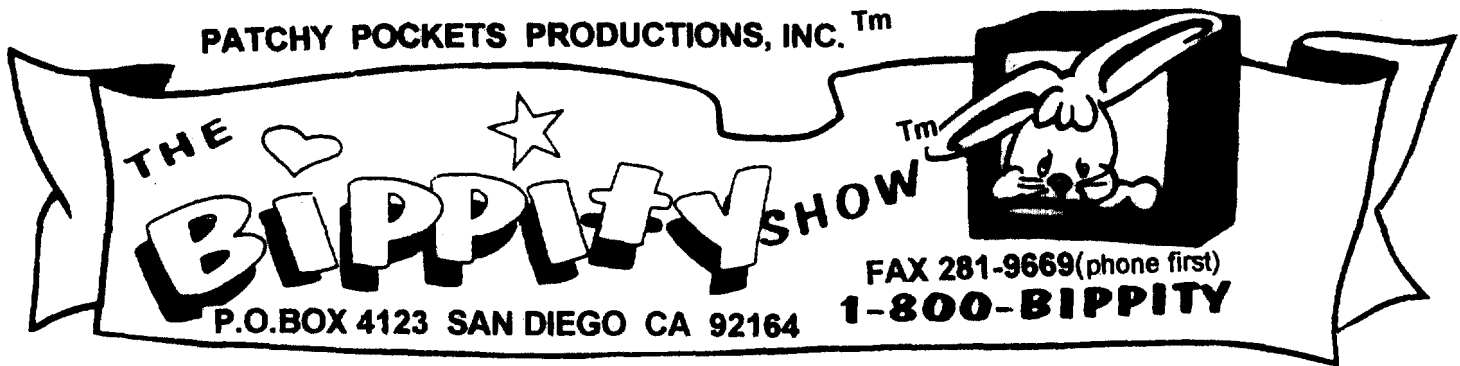

Stations already airing more than 3-1/2 hours of children's programming should not decrease their present schedule by more than thirty percent (30%).

Thank you for your time and interest.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL MOSHER

Dear Chairman Hundt,

Broadcasters are currently taking advantage of loopholes in the Children's Television Act. Educational and informational programming for children is not aired consistently.

Stronger guidelines are needed so educational and informational shows will be seen more. Children need less of violent shows that have lucrative product tie-ins such as "Power Rangers". Quality educational programming is sorely needed for children.

Please strengthen the guidelines when new rules are issued.

ATTENTION: The Television Division

To Whom It May Concern,

I had always heard that you are the organization which controls or mandates the type of programming allowed on radio or television.

There are some programs on television which are quality, wholesome and which are suitable for family viewing such as Dr. Quinn, Christy and Touched By An Angel, but there are many which are offensive to me as a Christian.

I do believe in censorship of certain types of programming if it does not follow with the guidelines of decency and quality. The ones I am referring to are programs such as Party of Five which condones and promotes the homosexual lifestyle which is considered an abomination by God in Leviticus 18:22 and Romans 1 in the Bible.

Some programs which are considered humorous could be construed as "off-color" or filthy humor which is portrayed on Saturday Night Live. Randomly switching the channels one night I was shocked and repulsed by a scene which condoned and promoted "beastility". The scene showed a handsome, viril man in swimming trunks lifting a large dog out of the swimming pool and from his expression he was titilated or aroused by the dog.

In January of this year, the Public Broadcasting Station in my area (KCPT) aired a program on the Mystery Theater where one scene showed 2 men engaging in sexual intercourse. This is certainly not quality programming, which they claim, but inordinate and very distasteful to me as the viewer.

Is there anything that can be done to prevent this type of programming?

Sincerely,

Charlene Goodin

Dear Mr. Hunt:

I listened with interest to your speech in front of the National Press Club some weeks ago concerning television for children. As a mother with two small children and a former elementary school teacher, I agreed with your comments and your desire to improve what is available for our children to watch.

Although my children are very young, 9 months and 2 years, my husband and I plan to very carefully monitor what comes into our home through the media. It is rather discouraging to see what can be viewed on television that clearly contradicts basic family values. I would like to do more to show support to networks and advertisers who promote quality programs and discourage those who don't, but am rather at a loss as to how to go about that.

If there is any way I can help to support your goals, please let me know.

Sincerely,

Roselyn Sant

Dear Friend:

I have two young children who watch some television, and I share the concerns of many viewers with amount of violence and sexual promiscuity that exists in many shows. However, I oppose censorship. Parental involvement, discretion and discussion with children exposed to these programs is the best form of censorship/control that can be exercised.

The best way to effect change, without censorship, is through encouraging the production of higher quality programs. Programs are produced in order to generate revenues. Revenues are generated through sponsors. If viewers had easier access to sponsors and networks, we could more easily make our opinions known. If there were a central point at which these viewer opinions could be collected and disseminated to the various parties involved, perhaps we would see some change. Currently, it is very difficult to get addresses and to make our opinions known. For instance, I am offended with the number of times that "Roseanne" has made light of stealing (let alone lying.) I am offended with the number of times that "Seinfeld" has made light of casual sex, and potential fatherhood. "Nanny," a show that my children watch, has made far too many sexual innuendoes. I will not watch those shows anymore. The sponsors should know that. (By the way, I am not a Christian-Right-Conservative. I am, in fact, a liberal, democrat and single mother of two children.)

Thank you for considering my opinions.

Sincerely,

Barbara Borys Giuffrida

Dear Mr. Hunt,

On behalf of our Center I recently filed comments with the Commission in response to the "Notice of Proposed Rule Making," dated April 7, 1995. Our comments are entitled, "Breaking the Spell: Towards a Reconciliation of Television and Education."

Perhaps you have had an opportunity to read the proposal and have some questions about our recommendations? I would enjoy meeting with you to explain the details and the rationale.

Towards the end of next week, in fact, from June 28th to 30th, I'll be in Washington D.C. and available to meet with you if possible. On Wednesday, I'll call your office in hopes that we could meet if only briefly.

Thanks for your interest.

Dear Chairman Hundt:

I am writing to urge you to defend the best interests of our nation's children by strengthening the guidelines for the Children's Television Act.

Millions of American children grow up facing constant crises such as hunger, poverty, family problems and violence -- leaving them ill-prepared to learn in school. Millions more are educated in underfunded and troubled school systems. The number of school drop-outs and illiterate high school graduates increases dramatically each year. These trends imperil our nation's health, security and future.

Television has an unparalleled influence in the lives of all Americans and can play an unprecedented role in nourishing the minds of our nation's children. Today children have better access to sensationalistic talk shows, violent cartoons, and adult sitcoms than they do to programming designed to enrich their minds. This must change.

The market forces, which govern how shows are developed and aired, are biased against educational programming for children. We cannot leave the educational needs of our nation's children in the unseen hands of market forces. Inaction has already led to the dominance of shows cynically designed to serve as marketing vehicles for toys, candy and other products.

The FCC must stand up for children. The FCC must provide broadcasters with a clearer definition of "educational" programming and make sure that television stations air at least one hour a day of these shows between 7 a.m.-10 p.m. in regularly scheduled time slots. America's children are counting on you.

Dear Hon. Hundt:

As a mother, grandmother, and school teacher I have many occasions to see the results of Television viewing of children. They can be very helpful or very harmful depending on the content of their viewing, of course. Public television has proven that the content of children's programs can be positive for the listeners' behavior.

As budget adjustments seem to indicate less money for public television, it will be more important for commercial television to accept more of the educational role. I hope your office will work for regulations to require networks to carry entertaining but educational programming shown on. And that children will be watching - less violence, of course. These times can be such teaching tools to the benefit of our future society that it's almost criminal to waste the opportunity to guide children's minds and values.

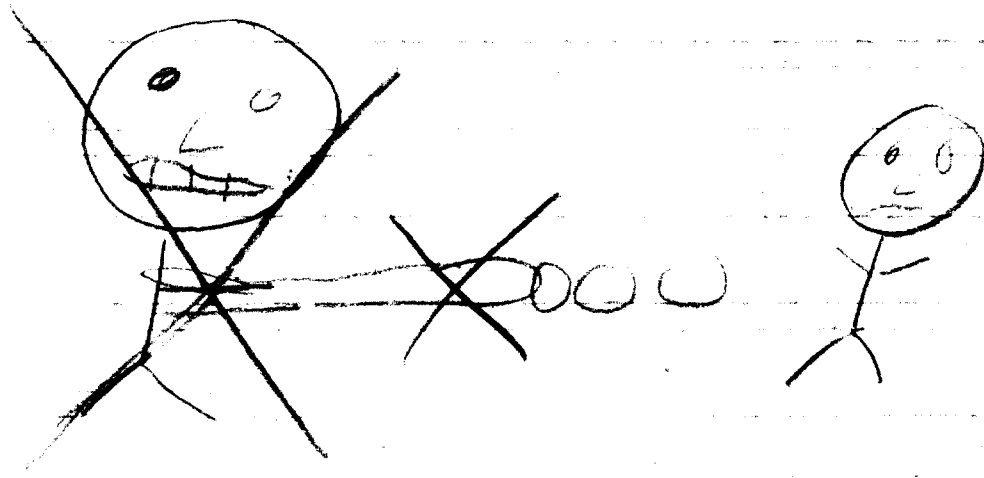

Sincerely,
Elaine Hassler

Dear FCC,

DOCKET FILE COPY ORIGINAL

I think that you shouldn't put that many violent shows on TV because sometimes little young kids take kicking, and punching seriously. Some kids take Power Rangers real seriously because in Norway two boys knocked out a girl and she froze to death.

Sincerely,
Brandon

Dear FCC

DOCKET FILE COPY ORIGINAL

Please stop The Violence in your movies. please don't show movies that have guts blown off or cut off heads cut off hair (scalped heads) in the six grade
and like some of it but a lot is too much.

Sincerely

Adam ~~James~~
